ASSET CLASS PERFORMANCE

Source: Morningstar Direct. As of November 30, 2023. *Hedge fund returns are as of October 31, 2023.

Fixed Income (November)

- + Interest rates fell sharply in the month as inflation moderated and the Federal Reserve reduced its hawkish tone. Bond prices rallied and the Bloomberg U.S. Aggregate Bond Index recorded its best monthly return in 30 years.
- + High yield posted strong results as investors favored riskier segments. It remains near the top of the asset class year-to-date.
- + Dollar weakness and falling rates abroad were tailwinds for non-U.S. debt.

Equity (November)

- + Equity markets around the world rebounded in November. A less hawkish Fed, rhetoric around increased odds of a soft landing, and positive earnings growth in Q3 helped propel markets.
- + Developed markets performed essentially in line with one another, posting high single digit gains in the risk on environment.
- + China continues to weigh on the emerging market equity space, which lagged developed markets in the month despite a positive absolute return.

Real Asset / Alternatives (November)

- + REITs rallied in the month alongside equity counterparts and pushed into positive territory year-to-date.
- Concerns of slowing global demand, especially out of China, has pushed energy prices lower, contributing to the negative return in commodities.
- Hedge funds, reported on a month lag, were mixed in October, posting a modestly negative return.

Past performance does not indicate future performance and there is a possibility of a loss.

FIXED INCOME MARKET UPDATE

U.S. Treasury Yield Curve

Rates fell across the U.S. yield curve and the curve remains inverted. Volatility in the bond market persists, but a less hawkish Federal Reserve, expectations of a rate hike pause, and moderating inflation have alleviated pressure on interest rates.

Source: FactSet. As of November 30, 2023.

Credit Market Spreads – Trailing 5 Years

Investment grade and high yield credit spreads compressed in November hovering near 2023 tightness and remain well below their respective 10-year averages. Fundamentals remain reasonably favorable in the corporate sectors as companies have termed out debt. Issuance has been lower this year, providing a technical tailwind, as companies that are able to postpone issuance in the higher rate environment have done so.

Index Performance Attribution (November 2023)

Fixed income markets broke the monthly decline streak for the first time since May. Tightening credit spreads and appetite for risk led many sectors to outpace Treasuries on a duration adjusted basis.

EQUITY MARKET UPDATE

Market Capitalization & Style Performance (November 2023)

Despite lagging year-to-date, small cap equities had a breakout moment with increased talk around a soft landing and a Federal Reserve likely in “pause” mode. Growth equities outperformed as the large technology names posted strong returns and they account for a large concentrated part of the growth indexes.

U.S. Equities – Returns by Sector (November 2023)

An equity rebound drove most sectors in the S&P 500 higher. Areas such as real estate and IT were standouts, both benefiting from lower interest rates and positive momentum from softening Fed language. Energy was the only sector in negative territory stemming primarily from falling oil prices.

Past performance does not indicate future performance and there is a possibility of a loss.

Commodity Performance (November 2023)

Commodities struggled in November, driven primarily by a declining energy sector. Falling oil prices were a key factor in the weak results as fears mounted of slowing global economic growth. OPEC+ announced upcoming production cuts at the end of November in an effort to bolster prices.

Source: FactSet. As of November 30, 2023.

REIT Sector Performance (November 2023)

REITs benefited from both the equity market rally and the declining interest rate environment. Expectations of the Fed pausing its hiking campaign contributed to the broad strength. Data centers have performed remarkably on the back of all the hype surrounding AI.

MATERIAL RISKS & LIMITATIONS

Fixed Income securities are subject to interest rate risks, the risk of default and liquidity risk. U.S. investors exposed to non-U.S. fixed income may also be subject to currency risk and fluctuations.

Cash may be subject to the loss of principal and over longer period of time may lose purchasing power due to inflation.

Domestic Equity can be volatile. The rise or fall in prices take place for a number of reasons including, but not limited to changes to underlying company conditions, sector or industry factors, or other macro events. These may happen quickly and unpredictably.

International Equity can be volatile. The rise or fall in prices take place for a number of reasons including, but not limited to changes to underlying company conditions, sector or industry impacts, or other macro events. These may happen quickly and unpredictably. International equity allocations may also be impact by currency and/or country specific risks which may result in lower liquidity in some markets.

Real Assets can be volatile and may include asset segments that may have greater volatility than investment in traditional equity securities. Such volatility could be influenced by a myriad of factors including, but not limited to overall market volatility, changes in interest rates, political and regulatory developments, or other exogenous events like weather or natural disaster.

Private Equity involves higher risk and is suitable only for sophisticated investors. Along with traditional equity market risks, private equity investments are also subject to higher fees, lower liquidity and the potential for leverage that may amplify volatility and/or the potential loss of capital.

Private Credit involves higher risk and is suitable only for sophisticated investors. These assets are subject to interest rate risks, the risk of default and limited liquidity. U.S. investors exposed to non-U.S. private credit may also be subject to currency risk and fluctuations.

Private Real Estate involves higher risk and is suitable only for sophisticated investors. Real estate assets can be volatile and may include unique risks to the asset class like leverage and/or industry, sector or geographical concentration. Declines in real estate value may take place for a number of reasons including, but are not limited to economic conditions, change in condition of the underlying property or defaults by the borrow.

Marketable Alternatives involves higher risk and is suitable only for sophisticated investors. Along with traditional market risks, marketable alternatives are also subject to higher fees, lower liquidity and the potential for leverage that may amplify volatility or the potential for loss of capital. Additionally, short selling involved certain risks including, but not limited to additional costs, and the potential for unlimited loss on certain short sale positions.
